Christina Calise is the firm's Creative Director and leads its physical and visual identity. She has nearly 20 years of experience as a designer and creative leader, working across interior architecture, workplace design, art, visual communication, and events.

Christina oversees the full range of the firm's creative work. As the firm grows, she shapes workplaces that reflect its culture and support how its lawyers and staff work, while maintaining a consistent brand identity across the firm. She guides each project from initial concept through completion.

Previously, Christina spent more than 11 years at an architecture and interior design firm, rising to Lead Designer. She led commercial and workplace projects from design strategy through implementation.

Christina's creative practice began in digital arts and fine art and expanded into floral design and event planning before she turned to interior architecture. That range informs her approach, which considers not only how a space looks and functions, but how it is experienced as a whole.

Christina is a California Certified Interior Designer (CID). She holds a Master of Interior Architecture from Cal Poly Pomona and a B.S. in Digital Arts from the University of Oregon.
