Cynthia Huang is a Strategy & Operations Manager at Stris & Maher, where she works directly with firm leadership on strategic and growth initiatives.

Cynthia's work spans business development, firm operations, recruiting and talent development, marketing and communications, and rankings and recognition.

She initially joined Stris & Maher as a Litigation Fellow in 2022 following earlier work in writing, editing, and communications. During her fellowship, she worked closely with the firm's attorneys on complex commercial litigation and appellate matters before state and federal courts, including the U.S. Supreme Court.

Cynthia holds an A.B. from the University of Chicago, where she double majored in Philosophy and Creative Writing with a minor in Mathematics. She won the Elsie Filippi Memorial Prize in Poetry and was awarded a research grant to study water, memory, and identity in Yu Kwang-chung's poetry. Her criticism has appeared in the Chicago Review.

She has native fluency in English and Chinese.
